Security Threat Horizon: What threat trends over the short-to-long-term will challenge our security defences and how can we prepare now?

Horizon scanning can be a good technique for people to look at complexity, challenge assumptions and review multiple ways that events could unfurl, in order to increase the resilience and reliability of their organisations. This is not about trying to predict the future, but instead explores what the future might look like to understand uncertainties better and to analyse whether the organisation is adequately prepared for potential opportunities and threats.

Hosted by Pulse Conferences, sponsored by Securonix, you are invited to attend this roundtable discussion in an inspiring and private dining setting. You will benchmark experiences with fellow CISO peers on how can we are currently gathering, sharing, forecasting and communicating security threat horizon trends and how we can ensure that we are prepared for threats.

The core objective of the discussion is to connect peers for an energetic debate on the practical approaches, realities, challenges and successes to develop confidence in our security postures. Questions that are certain to be covered include:

- What scanning models are we using?
- How can we spot potential causes for uncertainty?
- What can we do to prepare now to increase our resilience to survive threats?
- How can we exploit opportunities on the security threat horizon to strengthen the business?
- What tools can we use to ensure that we are prepared for threats on the horizon?

Security Evangelist at Securonix, Oliver Rochford will share his top 3 insights and predictions on the security horizon, including forecasts for living off the land techniques, future of behavioural automation and why ML Malware will relativize as a threat.

Conducted under The Chatham House Rule, the discussions will be co-chaired by a leading CISO alongside a senior strategist from Securonix, Dan Panesar. Clive Room, a Director at Pulse Conferences will be your Master of Ceremonies for the evening.

If you can accept, kindly register online to confirm your place at the table. There is no cost to attend. Places around the table are limited and confirmations will be done on a ‘first to confirm’ basis.

Many thanks for kindly considering this invitation. We hope that you can join fellow CISOs for what promises to be a evening of fascinating discussion, a top culinary experience and fantastic company!

We look forward to hearing from you soonest.

Yours sincerely,

Team Pulse
