Identity Security in the Cloud: How are we as CISOs Adapting and Simplifying a Roadmap to Build an Identity Security Strategy?

You are invited to participate in a unique dinner roundtable discussion hosted in London.

Cloud adoption is at an all-time high and predictions point towards the majority of future failures being a result of improper management of identities, access and privileges.

Sponsored by SailPoint, hosted by Pulse Conferences, you are invited to join the discussion in the inspiring and private dining setting in this prestigious venue by the River Thames in central London to hear what CISO peers are doing to simplify identity management projects to protect against cyber threats in a diverse workforce and that target digital identities.

Some key talking points for the discussion –

- Connect peers for an energetic debate on the practical approaches, realities, challenges
- What metrics get the best response for identity security?
- Has your digital pivot accelerated an identity centric security programme?
- Has the speed of your organisation’s cloud adoption caught you off guard? What is next?
- How do you adapt and simplify a roadmap to build an identity strategy for the cloud?
- What does a zero trust approach to identity security look like?
- What are resilience strategies and tools that are working, not working?
- How can we build an effective identity centric security strategy without re-inventing the wheel?
- What are practical ways to adapt and simplify an identity security roadmap? How can we find the balance between agility and security with IAM?
- How can we get better at controlling privilege change?
- What new technologies are improving the world of IAM?

We hope that you can join peers for what promises to be a dynamic discussion, a top culinary experience and great company!

Yours sincerely,

Team Pulse
